He wrote again on the 31st July alluding to the approaching sale of the shells, and gave notice again that he should hold them liable for all losses that might occur on the gans and shells. He wrote again to Messrs. Meyer & Co. on the 3rd August. say> ing he held them liable for all loss on the sale of the shells, and making a claim for damages from them of $3,363 in respect of the shells. Mr. Wilson, in cross-examination, put in further correspondence. One letter, of the 1st July, asked Messrs, Meyer Co. to put off selling the shells and protesting against a forced sale, which would involve serious loss. He asked he thought was reasonable, as the trouble was caused by Messrs. Meyer & Co.'s Canton agents. This was agreed to by Mr. Lemke, who gave two weeks more. Witness said he purchased money on the shells. Mr. Wilson-What did you give for it? Witness asked his Lordship if he was bound to answer the question.

His Lordship said he was. Mr. Brandt said he bought it for a considerafor $1757-Yes, and something else. What?—A claim of $5,000.

What was that claim? His Lordship here stopped Mr. Wilson, thinking he had been allowed to go quite far enough into a matter of this kind.

By his Lordship-Mr. Lemke always led witness to understand that Messrs. Siemssen & Co. at Canton stood in exactly the same position to them with regard to the gans as to the shells. Mr. Lemke told him he had been following out Messrs. Siemssen & Co.'s instructions with regard to the guns. The latter had sold the guns Messrs. Siemsson & Co.'s instructions.

Mr. Caldwell said that concluded his case. Mr. Wilson asked, if his Lorship was not already satisfied that he had made out his case, Mr. Jose Augusto Cordeiro said be had been by that the whole of the money paid had not been

His Lordship—The only question here is in what caracity did Messrs. Siemssen & Co. act with respect to these two contracts. Did they act in the same capacity in each, and were Messre. Mr. Wilson said one of the contracts was by Messrs. Siemssen & Co. as agents for Messrs. His Lordship said he would think over the matter and let Mr. Wilson know to-day or

A BUILDER'S LESSON How shall I a habit break?" As you did that habit make. As you gathered you must lose: As you yielded, now refuse, Thread by thread the strands we twist. Till they bind us, neck and wrist; Thread by thread the patient hand Must untwine, ore free we stand. As we builded, stone by stone, We must toil, unhelped, alone, Till the wall is overthrown.

But remember, as we try, Lighter every test goes by; Wailing in, the stream grows deep Toward the centre's downward swuop : Backward turn, each step ashore

Shallower is than that before. Alt, the precious years we waste Leveling what we raised in haste; Doing what must be undone. Fre content or love be won! First, across the gulf we east

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLEY. CORDOVA, SEVILLE, AND CADIZ. Andalusia, the southernmost, is in many respects the most interesting province of head. Frank also slept, but, waking at Spain. Highly favoured by Nature, domin- midnight, he saw with horror that two of the precious metals, the richness of the soil the sleeper. Frank sat, as it were, on ten-Italica, near modern Seville, a splendid place, where emperors and poets were torn : Gades. the modern Cadiz, was a seaport full of merchant-princes and marble palaces, the mart and emporium of the then known world To the Vandals, who by the right of conquest administered to the Roman inheritance, it owes the name it still bears; a single letter only is lacking to the "Vandalusia" of their Last of all came the Moors; and as the tide of their invasion was rolled back from the north they consolidated here a kindom which for several conturies was preeminent in Europe for learning, opulence and strength. The climate was congenial the soil, naturally rich, became marvellously productive under the scientific system irrigation which they introduced. The calipha controlled vast revenues, derived no less from conquest than from the industry of their subjects, and had, therefore, the command of untold wealth, which they freely lavished to enrich the land of their adoption. They raised stately edifices—mosques second to none in aplendour and sanctity, palaces such as that of Azzarab, which, if contemporary historiane are to be believed, outshone the most highly coloured pictures in the "Arabian Nights." Built as a tribute o affection from a fond husband to his wife. it contained thousands of marble pillars, fruntains of quicksilver and of sweet waters falling into basins of porphyry and jasper, gardens filled with costly exotics, and vocal with singing birds; doors, ceilings, walls of precious wood inlaid with gams and solid gold; 10,000 skilled workmen, under the eve of architects from Bagdad, had laboured in its construction; Constantinople supplied furniture rich and rare. When completed, 25,000 servants ministered to the wants of those who dwelt within its gorgeous precincts. Cordova, as the capital of this powerful and independent caliphate, the successful rival of Damascus and Bagdad. reached then to a beight of prosperity nearly inconceivable when compared with the present poverty-stricken prostration of the place. It numbered then, say Arabic writers of the time, nearly 1,000,000 inhabitants, who dwelt in 200,000 houses, owned 89,000 palaces, worshippped Allah in 600 mosques, and obeyed the precepts of cleanliness and constant ablutions in 900 splendid baths

The suburbs of the city consisted of 12,000

villages. Well-filled libraries and innumer-

It must not be thought that the kiln is left to burn unattended. It is the duty-and the very responsible duty-of the watchers at certain intervals to regulate the heat. This is done in the following manner: There are trial pieces, resembling cups, which vary in colour, according to the temperature. A number of these are placed within the kiln, and can be withdrawn by the watcher inserting a long fron rod through a hole at the side of the oven. By the apparance of these trial pieces he is enabled toxuscertain and correct, if necessary, the temperature. After the firing has lasted about forty-eight hours - which is the average for the "biscuit" fire—the oven is allowed gradually to cool; and it is afterwards "drawn"-that is to say, the "seggars," with their contents, are removed,—Great Industries of Great Britain.

HORROR ON A GENTLEMAN'S HEAD. "In September, 1846, after a short tour in Switzerland, Frank Buckland returned to Oxford. He brought with hin this time a iar full of the red slugs he wished to introduce into England; they, at least, were noiseless, and would not croak like frogs. > SHEEP WITH GOLDEN FLEECES. The fable of the "Golden Fleece" has been repeated not as a fable, but as al newspaper fact in Montana. A local sheepraiser has lately discovered that the wool of his sheep is very rich in gold, and it is now thought that sheep-mining will become the most profitable industry in the territory. A man who owns a thousand sheep, averaging 40 onnes of gold to the sheep, says the New York Times, has a bonanza. Unlike the ordinary mining bonanzy, the sheep bonanzal will be practically inexhaustible. Sheep breed rapidly, and a man can increase his flock almost as easy as he can water the stock of a silver mine, and with much more profit. His mines, so to speak, will double in number gold-violding sheep will be limited only by to date. They now consist of mine. The mercury is afterwards driven off by heat, and as a result the miner has both his gold wool of the Montana sheep is a problem. There is a theory that the sheep, in cropping grass, take a certain amount of gold-bearing earth into their mouths, and that the gold afterwards exudes from the pores, and caught by the wool. There is, however, no reason to suppose that gold taken into the pores. If this were the case, there can be no doubt that gold would be largely consumed by girls anxious to dye their hair easily and permanently. Then there is the theory that the gold in the wool of the sheen has been deposited there in the same way that gold has been deposited in the strata of FEES never before published. theory is held only by persons who derive geological periods, and hence gold is not deposited in its wool by the same process by simplest explanation of the matter is that the sheep roll on ground impregnated with gold dust, and thus fill their wool with gold. However this may be, there can be no doubt
